Supabase Download Counts

This website uses Supabase to store anonymous download counts for fonts.

When a font is downloaded, an anonymous counter for the respective font may be increased in the database. The stored download count is not linked to a user account, IP address, device identifier, browser fingerprint, or any other information intended to identify individual visitors.

The download counts are used to understand which fonts are used most often and to improve the structure, curation, and maintenance of the font library.

Although the stored download counts are anonymous and aggregated, Supabase and its technical infrastructure may process connection data such as IP addresses, timestamps, request metadata, or similar technical information for service delivery, security, logging, and abuse prevention.
